The Man Who Fought Windmills

1. Don Quixote was the 'fanciful friend'.
2. Sancho could not see any giants because he was not lost in a world of make-believe like Quixote.
3. Sancho hoped so because he believed that his friend's belief in imaginary things would get him into trouble.

- C. 1. Don Quixote thought that the windmills were giants because he imagined that their blades looked like the outstretched arms of a giant.
2. Don Quixote who lived in the world of imagination set out on a journey with his squire, Sancho Panza. They came across a group of windmills. Don Quixote, fuelled by his imagination mistakes the windmills for giants. He attacked the windmills, striking them with his lance, but ended up getting thrown off his horse and injured.
3. Don Quixote told Sancho that the giants had used magic to look like windmills. Hence he had to fight them.

4. He asked Sancho for the magic bowl so that he could reverse the magic used by the giants who were supposedly looking like windmills.

5. When Quixote put the bowl on his head, the curd dripped onto his head, but he thought that his brain was melting.

6. Quixote said that he would be ready for his next adventure once his brain became all right.
