Can't Stop Laughing

B 1. Tickling, the word bonda, people slipping on banana peels, and someone burping are the things that made Sandy laugh. She made a list of the things to make sure she never laughed at these things again.

2. A sound made by the smallest boy in 5B, P. Manigantan, poot-poot-putoor, from behind a bookcase made Sandy laugh again once she declared not to laugh at the thing she listed.

3. Sandy went to her brother, Sandy, a future scientist, to check if something was wrong with her. She was worried because she was not able to stop her laughter, despite making an attempt, to do so.

4. Sikand explained that it's very normal for human beings to laugh when they find something funny. Some people laugh more than others and that is fine.

5. a) Sandy is speaking to Sikand, her brother in this sentence.

b) Sandy's family is 'we' in the sentence. The laughing disease referred here is of Sandy's uncontrollable laughter, for smallest of things, which she thought runs in the entire family.

c) Sandy was not sure if her brother and other family members had the same problem, so spoke cautiously not knowing what his answer or reaction would be.
